Lot's of new member recruitment this year. Way to go everybody! This makes for a healthy club and will keep our dues down. We actually subsidize the magazine with our earnings at Michigan State Shows; but with another 200 members I believe we could pay our way with no problems...and continue to have 36-40 page magazines with great articles and lots of photographs. Doug Walcutt's epic on Nationals won't go on forever. Is there someone out there who wants to duplicate Doug's efforts in Small size? It might be a great way to write a book if you're thinking about it but feel a bit daunted...just jump in.

Editor's Notes: We hope to get this to you before Memphis. That will help whet your appetite for the Really Big Show, as Ed Sullivan used to say, as if we needed our appetites whetted. I picked up a Hawaii Star note in Crisp VF...an unc note that someone crease folded...is there a market for lower grade small size yet?

A lot of auction's since our last Rag Picker. It appears (if you're a National collector) that Kelly's book has made it more expensive for us...or there really are a lot of new collectors.

Lot's of activity across the board....large size type is going crazy...really it already went crazy. I overheard two dealers at Central states commiserating with one another. Something like "Boy, everyone that has paper for sale is really doing great." Unfortunately for them their cases were bare of paper. The Central States Show will be in Milwaukee for two years in a row beginning in 1998. There is always a lot of paper at Central States and at Milwaukee, in particular. Talk to Central States President John Wilson if you won't take my word for it. The airport is close to town and it's a Great City by a Great Lake, as they're fond of saying. For that matter, there is a major coin (& paper money) show in Milwaukee the Thursday through Sunday following Memphis. I am scheduled to give a talk Friday morning, June 27 from 10:00 am until 11 am on Wisconsin Territorial Paper Money. Catch it, if you can. Not much else to report, I'll look for you at Memphis!

OUR COVER: This illustration is a Proof Note of a canceled $100 note on The Pittsburgh NB of Commerce...this occurring after excellent counterfeits of this denomination on the bank made their appearance. Doug Walcutt indicates that this is the first time he has ever seen this phenomena.

CLUB News: CCCC continues its winning ways. They have two members from China, one from Malasia and one from Hawaii. As you read this Doug Walcutt will have already given the May presentation on Brown Backs; June 12 will be Bank notes of the First National Bank of West Chester by Nelson Aspen; July is open and August 21 is the annual picnic. Monies of Lancaster county is the topic of September 18, by Bob Le Fever; followed by WEB Notes October 16 by Bob Kvederas. In November Confederate Counterfeits of South Carolina will be presented by S. C. Upham on the 20th. December 18 is the Holiday party and donor auction.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE: 32 years! Thirty-Two years! 32 years, that's how long our club has been in existence. We started in April of 1965 and dues were $1 annually. today at only $8 U.S. it has to be the best bargain in town!! We only have three meetings per year, Spring and Fall at MSNS and one at Memphis in June, and each of these are designed around fellowship and a discussion of our new acquisitions. Our backbone, of course, is our "Rag Picker" for it's FRN exchange, great articles of interest and the advertisements the members can put in for free in the want ad section. Back in 1965 there were very few books written on the subject of paper money but today they are plentiful.

I can think of at least 5 new publications on paper money within the last year - two on Nationals. We share a great organization and if anyone has any unanswered questions, please let me know.

The Fall Show was a great success as was the FUN show with 950 Dealers. It's amazing how all the Yankees and Snowbirds flock to Florida in the winter time.

The Spring Show was held in Flint, April 25-27 with a modest turnout for both the Show and PMCM at our meeting. New member Dan Freekland was a hard worker at the Show for the co-hosting Flint Flying Eagle Coin Club and he helped with doughnuts and coffee at our meeting. He also received a bunch of numismatic books for exhibiting along with Joe Mikolajcjk and Julius Dudzinski. Memphis is the next big Show, June 19-22. It still reigns as "King" of the paper money shows. Larry Falater has taken on the Director's job with the passing of Chester Clark. Larry is a long time collector and charter member. He will do a great job for PMCM.

I tried to get our club a life membership in MSNS for the one time fee of $100 but was rejected. Clubs are not eligible for "life" status. A good try, but not possible under the guidelines.

So long for now.

Respectfully,
Dr. Wallace Lee,
President PMCM

DETROIT, TEXAS
By Frank Clark #2104

Detroit, Texas is a little hamlet located in Red River county between Paris and Clarksville. Detroit is sometimes referred to as "Little D." In 1980 the population was 805

The town was first established on the Lamar and Red River County line. The community was first known as Starksville. It was named after George A.N. Starkes.

The Texas and Pacific Railroad forced Starksville to be moved on November 1, 1876. The town then was named Bennett Station because Judge Bennett had donated a portion of his land for the building of the railroad. The railroad was built with convict labor.

The "Station" part of the town's name was dropped and a post office was established at Bennett. Bennett was often confused with Burnett, Texas. This led to the renaming of the town for a fourth time. J.M. Stephens who worked for the Texas and Pacific Railroad named the town after his hometown - Detroit, Michigan. This was in May 1887.

The town began to grow, attracting new businesses. A large grocery and dry goods store was opened in 1891 by S.F. and W.C. Crittenden.

This was also prime cotton growing country and the town had three cotton gins and an oil mill.

The First National Bank of Detroit was chartered in 1892 with charter number 4682 and capital of $100,000. The bank was placed in voluntary liquidation on January 14, 1929.

The bank issued the following notes: Second Charter, $10 and $20 Brown Backs, $10 and $20 Date Backs; Third Charter $5, $10 and $20 Date Backs, $5, $10 and $20 Plain Backs.

The total amount of circulation issued was $460,400. Outstanding at close was $20,650. Detroit's most famous resident was John Nance Garner. He was Franklin D. Roosevelt's Vice President from 1933-41. His nickname was "Cactus Jack." He was born south of Detroit in 1868 in a log cabin. Later he moved into a house south of Detroit's business district. The house still stands. Garner passed away in 1967.

VARIETIES OF NATIONAL BANK NOTES PART TWELVE

By Doug Walcutt

EARLY REORGANIZATIONS OF NATIONAL BANKS

Through the national bank note issuing era, the stockholders of a bank would occasionally liquidate, reorganize and re-charter a national bank for various reasons. The first instance of a new organization formed with the same title occurred after "The First National Bank of Norwich, CT," Charter 65, liquidated on May 2, 1864. A new bank with the same title became Charter 458 on June 6, 1864. In this and similar cases, I do not know if the same stockholders formed the new bank.

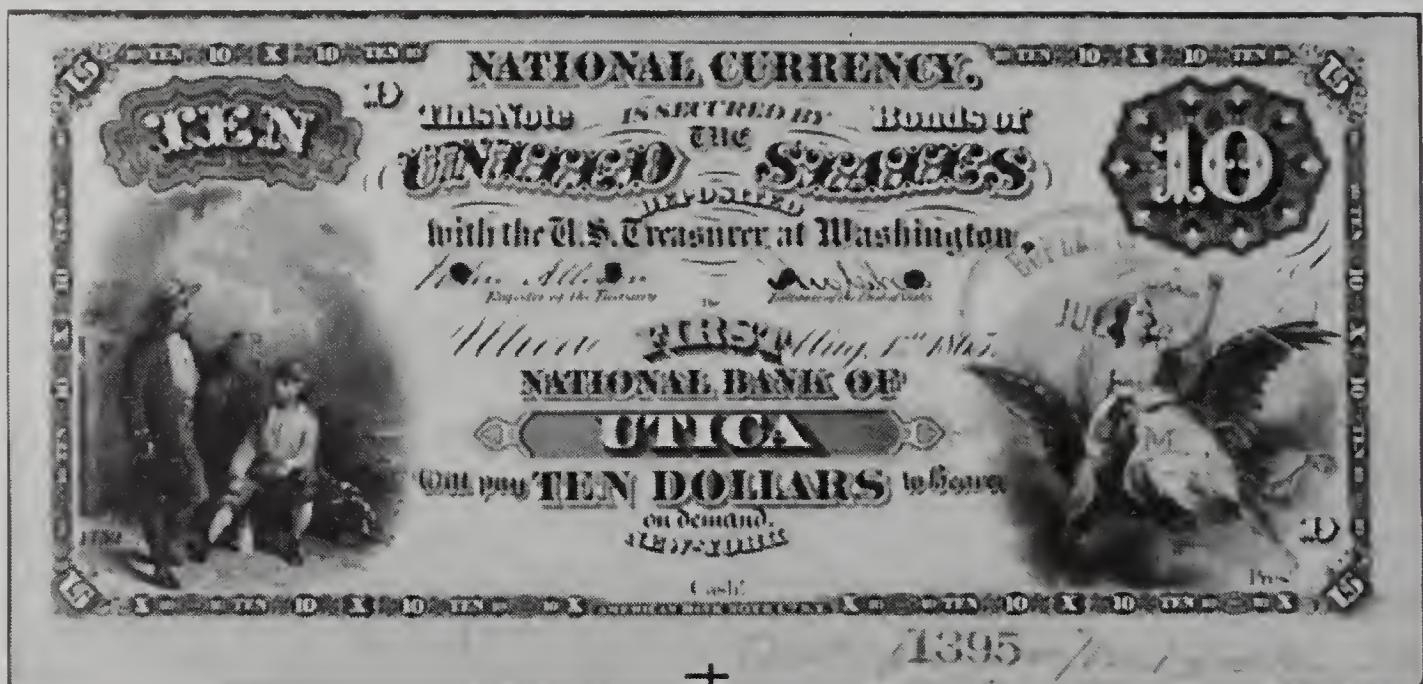

1. An Original Series note from Charter 458, with red Treasury serial number 20384, possibly the earliest-printed surviving $2 national bank note. (Photo courtesy of R.A. Kvederas)

2. The bottom half of a 20-20-20-100 Series of 1875 proof sheet for Charter 458. Notice the "65" engraved in the bottom selvage, along with the "458" stamped in blue ink. The plate was probably prepared initially for Charter 65, not used, and then altered with the new plate date of June 8, 1864, for the Charter 458 issue. (Photo courtesy of the Smithsonian Institution)

The next bank that apparently reorganized and re-chartered was "The First National Bank of Utica, NY," Charter 120, which liquidated June 9, 1865. The new organization was formed the same day and became Charter 1395 on July 7, 1865. The Charter 120 bank only issued 500 sheets of 10-10-10-10 notes, and all notes for this bank were reportedly redeemed. I also suspect that the 10-10-10-10 plate used for these notes was probably altered slightly and then used for the Charter 1395 issue. In general, the 10-10-10-10 plate combination was much more common with the very earliest national banks. By mid-1865 however, the 10-10-10-20 combination was more commonly used.

THE REORGANIZED RICHMOND, INDIANA BANK

The next bank of this group is somewhat more interesting. "The Richmond National Bank of Richmond, IN," Charter 1102 was liquidated on February 28, 1873. One month prior to this date, on January 28, 1873, a new association had been organized with the same title, which became Charter 2090 on March 5, 1873.

The Comptroller had received three consecutive 1,000-sheet deliveries of 1-1-1-2 notes for Charter 1102, on January 7, 1873. These sheets included bank serials 9401 to 12400, and Treasury serials D386600 to D389599. There had also been a 500-sheet delivery of 5-5-5-5 notes for Charter 1102 on December 14, 1872, including bank serials 10501 to 11000. Shortly after the Charter 2090 successor Richmond National Bank was chartered in early March 1873, the Comptroller received additional deliveries of notes for the bank. This included a 1,000-sheet delivery on March 26, 1873, of 5-5-5-5 notes with bank serials 11001 to 12000, and two consecutive 1,000-sheet deliveries on April 3, 1873, of 1-1-1-2 notes with bank serials 12401 to 14400.

According to the data which Louis Van Belkum apparently extracted from the Currency and Bond ledgers in the National Archives in Washington, DC, the Charter 1102 bank received 9,900 sheets of 1-1-1-2 notes and 10,425 sheets of 5-5-5-5 Original Series notes. The Van Belkum data further indicates that 1-1-1-2 sheets with bank serials 9901 to 14400 and that 5-5-5-5 sheets with bank serials 10426 to 13000, went to Charter 2090. This was the only reorganized bank where the serial numbers continued in this manner. The Van Belkum data also appears in the Hickman and Oakes and in the Don C. Kelly references. However, in Kelly's third edition the bank serial number changeover data was revised, probably incorrectly.

When the Richmond National Bank liquidated and re-chartered in February and March 1873, the Comptroller had 2,500 sheets 1-1-1-2 notes, and over 500 sheets of 5-5-5-5 notes for the Charter 1102 bank on hand. Apparently, the Comptroller decided not to waste these sheets and issued them to the new charter as the bank title was unchanged and the new bank had assumed the circulation of the old charter. This would also explain why the bank serial numbers continued from the old to the new charter.

Since the reorganization occurred prior to the printing of charter numbers on notes, the old notes were still usable, even with the old 1865 plate dates. The dates were probably not considered to be important at the time. I suspect that the same plates were altered to the new March 15, 1873, plate date and with the John Allison Treasury signature replacing S.B. Colby. I also suspect that the altered plates were then used to print the subsequent sheets for the successor bank in March and April 1873. There are no Original Series notes known from these later printings, but the date does appear on the known Series of 1875 notes and the Smithsonian proofs.

THE ROCKVILLE, INDIANA REORGANIZATION

A bank that seems to have reorganized and re-chartered, with a slightly different title, was a Rockville, IN, bank. The 1883 Annual Report of the Comptroller of the Currency lists over six pages of banks (about sixty per page) that had gone into "voluntary liquidation" before November 1883. The three banks mentioned previously each have a notation, "New bank with the same title." In the Rockville case, there is no notation on the Comptroller's listing of the 1877 liquidation of the earlier bank.

I first observed a note from "The National Bank of Rockville, IN," Charter 2361, from the "E" plate position with a star. This note is very interesting as it is the only known note from a bank's second (E-F-G-H) $5 Series of 1875 reentered plate. This note bears Variety 4 vignettes and the 1864 Act date, so there is actually no vignette variety exception here. In August 1989, at the ANA show in Pittsburgh, PA, another note from this bank surfaced in the stock of one of the dealers. This note was from plate position "C" (from the bank's first plate) and I immediately noticed that the title layout on this note was completely different.

Three months later, at the St. Louis show in November, I noticed that the same dealer still had the note. When I asked if I could borrow the note to get a photocopy of it, he readily agreed. Later that day, I showed a copy of both notes to John Hickman and he made a comment that I missed. That evening, with John Hickman present, I showed the copies to Peter Huntoon and he immediately said, "The earlier note has the 1863 Act date," whereupon, John Hickman stated, "I said that this afternoon." When I got the copy back, I took a closer look and saw that the earlier note also had the earlier Variety 2 vignettes, and I stated, "They must have altered the plate from the Charter 63 title."

At that time, I already knew the "The First National Bank of Rockville, IN," Charter 63 had liquidated in 1877 and that shortly thereafter Charter 2361 was organized and chartered. Charter 63 had been liquidated on April 25, 1877, while Charter 2361 was organized on May 14, 1877, chartered on June 16, 1877. This bank issued only Series of 1875 $5 notes before liquidating in May 1897. The low-grade note, from a plate altered to a different charter number and title, demonstrated that a previously unknown plate alteration procedure probably had occurred.

5. A Charter 2361 Series of 1875 note from the plate altered from the earlier Charter 63 bank and a Charter 2361 Series of 1875 note from the reentered replacement plate with a new title layout.

Subsequently, in May 1990, when I met Peter Huntoon in Washington, DC, at the National Archives, he said, "Wait till you see what I just found here!" It was a copy of a letter from the Comptroller of the Currency to the Chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, dated June 27, 1877. It ordered the Bureau to change the 5-5-5-5 plate from Charter 63 to Charter 2361, change the plate date to June 30, 1877, and to print and deliver 5,000 impressions from the changed plate.

THE WYMAN TREASURY SIGNATURE VARIATIONS

Another interesting variation can be found on the Charter 2361 Series of 1875 $5 replacement plate. On this plate there is a muling of the A.U. Wyman Treasury signature variety that is otherwise usually only found on Series of 1882 $5 Brown Back notes. This version of the Wyman signature is somewhat smaller than found on other issues.

A.U. Wyman was Treasurer of the United States from July 1, 1876, to June 30, 1877, and his signature appears along with that of John Allison on Series of 1875 notes from plates prepared at that time. Wyman again served as Treasurer from April 1, 1883, to April 30, 1885. During that period, his signature generally appeared with that of B.K. Bruce on Series of 1882 notes. The smaller version of Wyman's signature is on the $5 notes of this issue. On other observed Series of 1875 $5 notes, with the "Bruce-Wyman" signature combination, the Wyman signature is the larger version. These would be on plates that were converted from the Original Series to the Series of 1875 during his 1883-85 term of office.

10. A close-up of the "Allison-Wyman" Treasury signatures on a typical Series of 1875 $5 note and of these signatures from the Charter 2361 replacement plate, with the smaller Wyman signature. Notice, the beginning of the Wyman signature is to the right of the "T" in Treasurer on the smaller version.

11. A close-up of the "Bruce-Wyman" signatures on a Series of 1875 $5 note, and of the smaller Wyman signature used on Series of 1882 Brown Back $5 notes.

VARIETIES OF NATIONAL BANK NOTES PART THIRTEEN

THE EARLIEST NATIONAL BANKS

The Acts of February 25, 1863, and June 3, 1864, allowed the organization and chartering of banking associations as national banks. Those banks organized after the passage of the 1864 Act were given twenty-year initial corporate lives (or length of existence from their organization dates). In contrast, those banks that had organized under the 1863 Act, were required to specify in their articles of association, their length of corporate existence, which, under the 1863 Act, could be for up to twenty years from the date of the Act or to February 25, 1883, as the maximum.

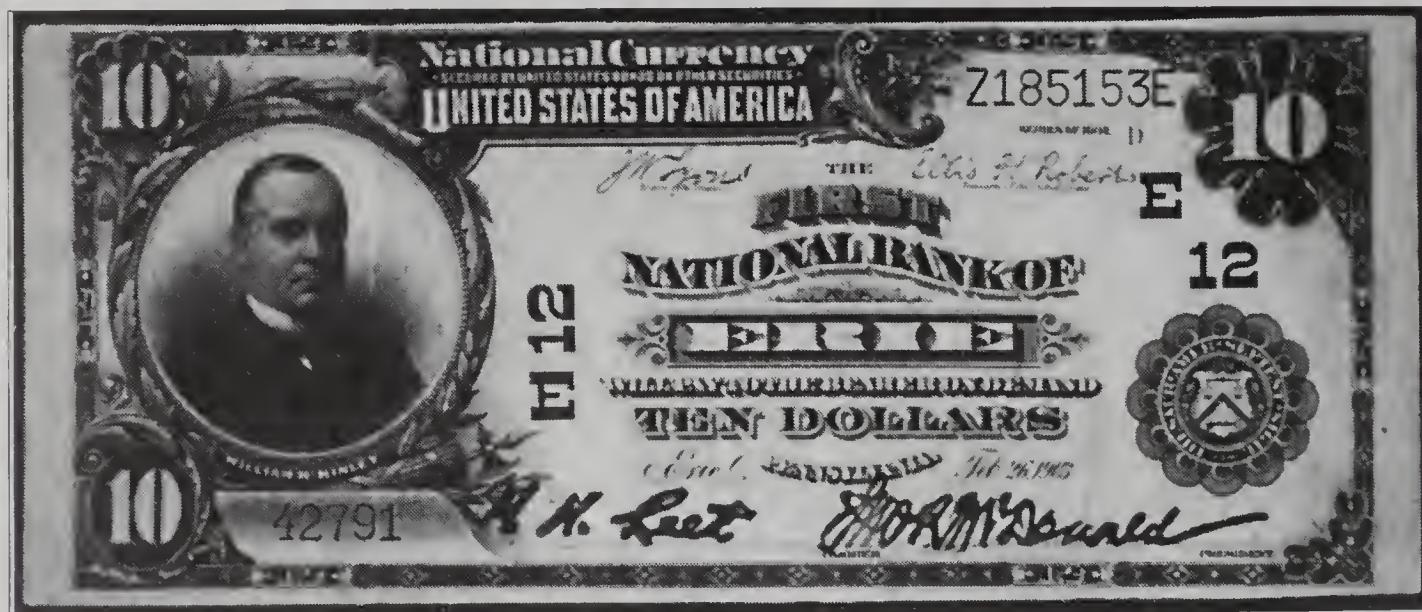

1. A Series of 1875 note and a small-size Series of 1929 Type 2 note from Charter 12. This was the lowest charter number to issue notes throughout the note issuing period with the same title and charter number.

For banks organized under the 1863 Act, the most common means chosen to comply with the expiration requirement was to select the maximum corporate life possible—to February 24 or 25, 1883. In most cases, this meant the bank's expiration would occur at the close of business on February 24, 1883. There were a few banks, such as Charter 12, Erie, PA, where the expiration date was determined to be February 25, 1883. The charter extension dates for these banks became February 26, 1883, and February 26, 1903. However, many of the earliest chartered banks chose a nineteen-year corporate life, which then expired in early 1882, before legislation had passed allowing these banks to extend their charters.

EARLY EXPIRATIONS OF NATIONAL BANK CHARTERS

The Comptroller of the Currency, in his annual report to Congress in December 1881, had recommended legislation for the extension of the corporate lives of national banks. After much delay, Congress finally passed an act, which the President signed on July 12, 1882, allowing national banks to extend their corporate existence. This action occurred well after many banks had been forced to liquidate, most of which had to organize entirely new associations to continue in business.

2. A Series of 1902 Blue Seal note from Charter 12 with the February 26, 1903, extension (plate) date.

There is a list in the Comptroller's December 1883 report, beginning on page CXLVI, under a heading, reading in part, "National banks that have gone into voluntary liquidation—for the purpose of organizing new associations with the same or different title." The list includes all such liquidations up to February 24, 1883. A very short second list appears, on page CXLVII, of National banks that had to close by limitation at the expiration of their charters and later liquidated under the provisions of Section 7 of the Act of July 12, 1882. Before their expirations, most of the banks on both lists organized new associations. However, I have found it rather interesting and unusual that three banks on the second list just let their charters expire, apparently without any attempt to reorganize a new bank or extend the existing bank.

The first of these three banks was Charter 54, "The First National Bank of Girard, PA," that had apparently selected an initial nineteen-year life, which expired on June 1, 1882. This bank could not have extended its charter, as the Act of July 12, 1882, had not yet passed. No other national bank was formed in this town, in the northwestern corner of Pennsylvania, until 1904, when "The National Bank of Girard, PA," became Charter 7343.

3. An Original Series note from the Charter 54 bank, whose charter expired on June 1, 1882.

The other two banks of the group had their charters expire on February 24, 1883. These banks were: Charter 119, "The First National Bank of Elmira, NY," and Charter 179, "The First National Bank of Chittenango, NY." These two expirations occurred after the passage of the Act of July 12, 1882, that allowed banks to extend their charters. Apparently, neither bank extended, nor was a new bank organized at either location. In Elmira, NY, there were three other existing national banks at the time. In Chittenango, NY, there were no other national banks, at least until the end of the note issuing era in 1935.

CXLVI REPORT OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY.

National banks that have gone into voluntary liquidation under the provisions of sections 5220 and 5221 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, for the purpose of organizing new associations with the same or different title, with date of liquidation, amount of capital, circulation issued, retired, and outstanding November 1, 1883.
